British Defeated.

CALCUTTA, April 15.—News from the Chitral campaign was sent from Sir Robert Low's headquarters Sunday. A corps of guides under Col. Battye, while attempting to destroy the villages in the hills, from which a persistant fire was dropped into camp, advanced farther than Sir Robert had intended. A fight followed. The natives were held in check and apparently suffered heavy losses. Just as the movement of the guides' corps was completed, Col. Battye fell mortally wounded. He died a few minutes later. The British lost three others killed and two officers and seventeen privates wounded. The British had no idea that such a large force of the enemy was in the immediate neighborhood. Further fighting in the near future was regarded as likely when the last dispatches left the camp.

New Income Tax Complication.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, April 15.—A new complication in the income tax has developed. The Bullion, Beck and Champion mining companies, who were required to pay a tax of $6,000 on their $300,000 dividends paid stockholders last year, filed a protest with the collector for this district, notifying him that they would decline to pay on the ground that profits from mines should be classed the same as rents, being revenue derived from real estate. Other large mining companies will make the same contention.

Triple Tragedy at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, O., April 15.—John Seyhar, a Bohemian laborer, shot and instantly killed Charles Reichter shortly after daylight Sunday morning. He then shot Reichter's hostler in the neck. The shooting was the result of a drunken brawl. Seyhar was taken to the Central station and locked in a top tier cell. Half an hour after being locked up he committed suicide by hanging himself with his suspenders. Seyhar was about 28 years old, and Reichter 35.

THE CAUSE LOST.

A Desperate Battle Fought and the Spaniards Victorious.

Brig.-Gen. Crombet Killed on the Field at Palmarito.

Gen. Maceo, the Leader of the Cuban Revolutionists, Taken Prisoner—Capt.-Gen. Calleja Jubilant Over the Defeat of the Rebels—Description of Battle.

HAVANA, April 15.—Cuba's cause is lost. Brig.-Gen. Crombet is killed and Gen. Maceo is captured. On the battlefield of Palmarito are buried the dearest hopes of Cuban leaders, and the Pearl of the Antilles is still fettered by the chains of Spanish domination. In a desperate conflict at Palmarito Saturday the Spaniards defeated the insurgent forces. Crombet was not only killed but his body was mutilated by sword thrusts of the vindictive Spaniards, who spat upon him after he was dead.

Without the two leaders, Crombet and Maceo, the Cuban revolution dwindles to merely a filibustering expedition. Gen. Camnos' services will not be needed. The rebels whom he came to conquer are rebels no longer. The spirit of liberty fled from this tyrant-ridden land when Crombet died and Macco was put in chains.

Everything seems to indicate that the war is ended. Reports from the scene of battle are meager, but enough is known to show that the patriots' cause is lost forever.

Spanish authorities, as soon as the news was received, hastened to post it on their bulletins, and royalists in Havana celebrated Sunday night the ending of the revolution. There will, of course, be some filibustering parties, but without Crombet and without Maceo there can be no real war.

The Cuban army met the Spaniards Saturday at Palmarito. The rebel forces amounted to little more than 2,000 men, while that of the Spaniards was about 3,000. A desperate battle followed. The fighting, according to official reports, lasted about two hours, and at the end of that time the rebels retreated. They were pursued by the Spanish troops and Maceo was captured. His secretary was also taken, and all the personal and private papers of Gen. Maceo were confiscated.

Flor Crombet, Maceo's chief adviser, was killed on the battlefield. It was he who was chiefly instrumental in organizing the provisional government at Guatanaro. Marti, the president of that government, is said to have fled to the United States.

The battle at Palmarito, which is the last conflict of any consequence which will take place during this revolution, was one in which the insurgents fought desperately against odds. The Spanish soldiers were disciplined and resisted with remarkable courage the onslaughts of the rebels.

Maceo and his army had been in the mountains, and their scouts were on the lookout for the Spaniards. It is supposed that the number of soldiers was underestimated by these emissaries.

The rebels rushed down the mountain side and endeavored to engage the troops in a hand to hand conflict. Spain's regulars waited until the insurgent army was close at hand and then poured in their volley with deadly effect. A number of Cuban officers, one of whom was a colonel, were killed.

Maceo was a leader of the rebel forces with Gomez during the last revolution. Though but a youth he achieved considerable distinction. At the outbreak of this revolution Maceo landed at Puerto de Barancoa, March 31. With him were the following officers of the new rebel army: Brig.-Gen. Flor Crombet, Gen. Jose Maceo, Col. Augustin Celreco, Col. Patrice Corona, Frank Agramonte, Pedro Duverger and Jose Marti.

Capt.-Gen. Calleja, when I called on him at the palace Sunday evening, said that he had received the official news that Crombet had been killed and that Maceo had been captured. He added that the Spanish had only lost a few soldiers, while that of the insurgents was heavy in the extreme. He said:

"Tell the Americans that when they know that the Spanish authorities on this island have put down the revolution themselves they will see that they have greatly exaggerated the revolutionary sentiment which prevailed in Cuba."

The war seems to be practically ended. There may be a few filibustering parties, but so far as a real and sincere struggle for liberty is concerned, all is over.

Consul General Williams is making preparations to leave the island soon, and Vice Consul Springer will assume the duties of the office at once.

CONSUMPTION

Carries Off John Eidgenoss Last Evening at Half-past 6 O'clock.

John Eidgenoss, a well known stone cutter living on East Third street, near North Waller street, died last evening at half-past 6 o'clock. His death was caused by consumption, of which disease he had been sick for some two or three years. He was well known about the city, having worked here for many years at his trade.

He also lived for many years on Carey's Run, being foreman of Reitz & Co.'s stone quarry there. He married a daughter of John Webber, formerly a coal dealer here. Mrs. Eidgenoss survives him. He was about 60 years old.

Those Ironton Excursionists.

About seventy-five persons came up from Ironton yesterday on the Lee H. Brooks excursion, and spent a few hours wandering about town with their mouths open, taking in the sights. The majority of the excursionists looked and acted as though they came from the hills back of Ironton. They were the unlucky objects of much good natured guying from a crowd that stood on the bank to see them pull out.

Why Nate Changed His Mind.

Nate Rickey had his trunks across the river to the C. & O. depot this morning and was just going to buy a ticket for Ashland, Huntington, Charleston and other West Virginia cities when some one whispered to him that smallpox was holding the fort up there and—well Nate is still in Portsmouth.

A Marvellous Hen.

The boys of the Seventh street engine house had a curiosity in the shape of a hen on exhibition yesterday. The hen belonged to one of the firemen, who had killed her for his Easter dinner. Inside of her he found nine large eggs almost as large as duck eggs.

THE circulation of the TIMES exceeds the circulation of all dailies published in Portsmouth and is growing each day.

AS THE bright sunshiny days of spring are returning the hammer and the saw are coming into more active use. There will be a great deal of building this season. Notwithstanding there were at least 300 dwellings built last year, it is almost impossible to secure a good house. There has been a demand this spring greater than ever before and we know persons that were unable after long search to get a satisfactory house. This is the best evidence of the prosperity of our city.

THE city of Portsmouth from its location and natural resources can be made to grow and prosper. The people have it within their power to bring capital here. Here is a good place for investment and there should be a united effort on the part of the best people of all parties, creeds and classes to aid in widening the influence of our industries and increasing our population. There is no question as to the industry and morality of our people, and what they now need is good government. By a united effort of our people this can be secured.

A SHORT time ago we completed a very handsome catalogue for the Star Shoe Company. This company has had a very prosperous career under the management of S. O. Titus, one of Portsmouth's best citizens. Their trade is rapidly increasing and the company is taking a leading position among the many prosperous shoe factories in our city. The catalogue of Drew, Selby & Co., for the fall trade is now in the hands of the binders. This popular company is putting out an edition of 13,000 of the largest and finest shoe catalogues sent out by any company in the United States. One year ago their edition was 3,000, about six months ago we got out an edition of 7,000 and today we complete the work on an edition of 13,000 of the handsomest catalogues ever seen in or sent out of Portsmouth. The city of Portsmouth owes much to her shoe firms, and especially is this true of this popular firm. It gathers up wealth from every state in the Union and distributes it here in Portsmouth, besides it adds largely to the tax duplicate of the city and county. We are pleased to see this prosperity, not only from a selfish standpoint, but because it is justly earned. The TIMES wishes every industry in Portsmouth God speed for the trade of 1895-96 and that they may each, like these popular firms, double and even treble their business. The great success of this company is due to the thorough discipline and careful management of the members composing the firm. The new catalogue contains an excellent half-tone portrait of each of the members of the firm, and each of its traveling men. It is printed on fine cream enameled paper and enclosed in a handsome colored enameled cover. You can only realize its magnitude and beauty by seeing it. This department of the company's work is under the management of Mr. Pearl E. Selby and he should feel justly proud of the success of his work.

NO SUBJECT is just now receiving more attention than municipal government. The expenses of maintaining city government comprises much the greater part of the burden of taxation. The Cincinnati Enquirer in speaking of this subject says:

"The congregation of many thousands of people on a few acres of land requires the most extraordinary system and discipline. It makes necessary an enormous expense. It creates a government, in the case of a large city like Cincinnati, of greater scope and importance than the government of a state. Who pay for the hundreds of miles of expensive street paving; for double the distance in sidewalks; for an unseen and wonderful sewage system that drains every house; for fire apparatus and men stationed day and night in every district; for a police system equal to a considerable army; for the erection and maintenance of costly public buildings; for a tremendous official list; for the creation and improvement of public parks; for courts of justice and numberless other things that go to make up the sum total of the expense of a great municipality?

"The taxpayers.

"And who are the taxpayers?

"The whole population. The rent the working man has to pay is greater or less, according to the taxes his landlord has to turn in. The tax the manufacturer or business man pays necessarily enters into the calculation when he is figuring as to how much he can pay his employes.

"Tax! tax! tax! It is the question constantly uppermost in a great city. It hits everybody, and unless the administration of affairs is wise, honest economical, living or doing business in a city becomes a burden. How many big manufacturing establishments has Cincinnati lost on account of heavy levies to maintain extravagant government?

"Nature does nothing for the city. Pavements do not grow like wheat. City buildings do not spring up like corn. Everything has to be paid for out of brains or hard knocks. The country can get along very well with nature, which costs nothing, but the city must resort to embellishment at a prodigious expense."

This question is the important one now before this city. The incoming council will have to wrestle with it. To its ability and integrity we will look for economy and retrenchment in the expenses. Upon it depends the future prosperity and growth of our city. We believe there are good men in this body, and hope their wishes will prevail.

A telephone line from Grafton to Belington, W. Va., is to be built. The proposition is to run the line by way of Knottsville, Evansville, Claude, Moatsville, Kasson, Valley Furnace, Nestorville, Tacy, Kalamazoo, Meadowville, Vanney's Mills, Phillippi, Calhoun to Belington.

The trial of George Cady for the murder of John R. Worden, at Larwill, was ended in the circuit court at Columbia City, Ind., Saturday morning, the jury returning a verdict charging him with manslaughter and fixing his punishment at three years in the penitentiary.

John O'Brien, a saloon keeper at Gainesville, Tex., was arrested for drunkeness and firing his pistol, and put in the calaboose. While in there he set fire to a straw bed and before help could reach him his hands and arms half way to the elbows were cooked, while his face presented a revolting sight. He can not recover.

Steamer Aground.

NEW YORK, April 15.—The steamboat Continental, of the New Haven line, which left her pier here, ran aground as she was about to pass through Hell Gate. She struck the sea wall at Nigger point. He prow was driven through the sea wall a distance of twenty feet. There was some excitement at first, but all hands were reassured by the officers. All efforts to pull her off have thus far been unavailing.

Handcar Run Down.

MARSHALL, Mo., April 15.—Friday evening the west-bound fast freight on the Chicago & Alton ran down a handcar, on which were A. L. Klein, Peter Danuser, John Shinkle and his son. They were section hands at work. Mr. Klein, the foreman, had an arm broken and his skull fractured. Danuser was mortally wounded and died Saturday, and John Shinkle was killed outright. Young Shinkle escaped without injury by jumping.

New York's Population.

NEW YORK, April 15.—The police census returns are nearly all in. The population of New York, according to these figures, is 1,888,780, an increase since the census of the state board of health, taken in 1893, of just 87,011. This is considered a very conservative estimate, and there is no doubt that when the actual figures are all in it will be materially increased.

Earthquake in Italy.

ROME, April 15.—Several districts of Sicily were shaken severely by earthquake Sunday. The shocks were most violent in the province of Syracuse. In Monterosso and Alamo churches and other buildings laid in ruins. The people of the town are badly frightened and refuse to stay indoors. No deaths have been reported.

Our better halves say they could not keep house without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is used in more than half the homes in Leeds.—SIMS BROS., Leeds, Iowa. This shows the esteem in which that remedy is held where it has been sold for years and is well known. SOUND MONEY

The Subject of President Cleveland's Letter

Declining an Invitation to a Reception by Chicago Business Men.

What is Needed Now is a Plain and Simple Presentation of the Argument in Favor of Sound Money—He Wants Monometallism Put Down.

CHICAGO, April 15.—Mr. Henry Robbins received from President Cleveland Sunday evening a letter declining the invitation of the number of business men of Chicago to attend a public reception here to himself and Mrs. Cleveland.

On April 6 one hundred of the most prominent citizens of Chicago, both democrats and republicans, sent an invitation to the president, stating that they were anxious to express their deep sense of the appreciation of his statesmanlike and courageous action in maintaining the financial credit of our nation and his attitude in favor of the preservation of sound national currency.

There was much disappointment at Mr. Cleveland's refusal to come here, but his excuse is well received. Mr. Robbins says that while he is sorry that the president was unable to accept the invitation, as the ovation which would have been given him would have given great impetus to honest money sentiment throughout the west, still he is glad the invitation was sent, as in his reply Mr. Cleveland takes occasion to speak on the topic.

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
WASHINGTON, April 13.

To Messrs. William T. Baker, George W. Smith, John A. Roche, T. W. Harvey, David Kelly and Henry S. Robbins:

Gentlemen—I am much gratified by the exceedingly kind and complimentary invitation you have tendered me on behalf of many citizens of Chicago to be their guest at a gathering in the interest of sound money and wholesome financial doctrine.

My attachment to this cause is so great, and I know so well the hospitality and kindness of the people of Chicago, that my personal inclination is strongly in favor of accepting your flattering invitation; but my judgment and my estimate of the proprieties of my official place oblige me to forego the enjoyment of participating in the occasion you contemplate.

I hope, however, the event will mark the beginning of an earnest and aggressive effort to disseminate among the people safe and prudent financial ideas.

Nothing more important can engage the attention of patriotic citizens, because nothing is so vital to the welfare of our fellow countrymen and to the strength, prosperity and honor of our nation.

The situation we are confronting demands that those who appreciate the importance of this subject and those who ought to be the first to see impending danger, should no longer remain indifferent or overconfident. If the sound money sentiment abroad in the land is to save us from mischief and disaster it must be crystalized and combined and made immediately active.

It is dangerous to overlook the fact that a vast number of our people, with scant opportunity thus far to examine the question in all its aspects, have nevertheless been ingeniously pressed with special suggestions, which, in this time of misfortune and depression, find willing listeners prepared to give credence to any scheme which is plausibly presented as a remedy for their unfortunate condition.

What is now needed more than anything else is a plain and simple presentation of the argument in favor of sound money. In other words, it is a time for the American people to reason together as members of a great nation which can promise them a continuance of protection and safety only so long as its solvency is unsuspected, its honor unsullied and the soundness of its money unquestioned.

These things are ill-exchanged for the illusions of a debased currency and groundless hope of advantages to be gained by a disregard of our financial credit and commercial standing among the nations of the world.

If our people were isolated from all others and if the question of our currency could be treated without regard to our relations to other countries, its character would be a matter of comparatively little importance. If the American people were only concerned in the maintenance of their precious life among themselves they might return to the old days of barter, and in this primitive manner acquire from each other the materials to supply the wants of their existence. But if American civilization was satisfied with this it would abjectly fail in its high and noble mission.

In these restless days the farmer is tempted by the assurance that, though our currency may be debased, redundant and uncertain, such a situation would improve the price of his products. Let us remind him that he must buy as well as sell; that his dreams of plenty are shaded by the certainty that if the price of the things he has to sell is nominally enhanced the cost of the things he must buy will not remain stationary; that cheap money proclaims are unsubstantial and elusive, and even if they were real and palpable he must necessarily be left far behind in the race.

It ought not to be difficult to convince the wage earner that if there were benefits arising from a degenerated currency they would reach him least of all and last of all. In an unhealthy stimulation of prices an increased cost of all the needs of his home must belong to his portion, while he is at the same time vexed with vanishing visions of increased wages and an easier lot.

The pages of history and experience are full of this lesson. An insidious attempt is made to create a prejudice against the advocates of a safe and sound currency by the insinuation, more or less directly made, that they belong to financial and business classes and are, therefore, not only out of sympathy with the common people of the land, but for selfish and wicked purposes are willing to sacrifice the interests of those outside their circle.

I believe that capital and wealth, through combination and other means, sometimes gain an undue advantage, and it must be conceded that the maintenance of a sound currency may in a sense be invested with a greater or lesser importance to individuals, according to their condition and circumstances.

It is, however, only a difference in degree, since it is impossible for any one in our broad land, rich or poor, whatever may be his occupation, and whether dwelling in a center of finance and commerce or in a remote corner of our domain, to be really benefitted by a financial scheme not alike beneficial to all our people, or that anyone should be excluded from a universal interest in the safe character and stable value of the currency of the country.

In our relation to this question we are all in business, for we all buy and sell; so we all have to do with financial operations, for we all earn money and spend it. We can not escape our interdependence. Merchants and dealers are in every neighborhood, and each has its shops and manufactories.

Wherever the wants of man exists, business and finances in some degree are found, related in one direction to those whose wants they supply and in another to the more extensive business and financial to which they are tributary. A fluctuation in price at the seaboard is known the same day or hour in the remotest hamlet. The discredit or depreciation in financial centers of any form of money in the hands of the people is a signal of immediate loss everywhere.

If reckless discontent and wild experiments sweep our currency from its own support, the most defenseless of all who suffer in that time of distress and national discredit will be the poor, as they reckon the loss in their scanty support, and the laborer and workingman, as he sees the money he has received for his toil shrink and shrivel in his hand when he tends it for the necessaries to supply his humble home.

Disguise as we may, the line of battle is drawn between the forces of safe currency and those of silver monometallism. I will not believe that if our people are afforded an intelligent opportunity for sober second thought they will sanction schemes that, however cloaked, mean disaster and confusion, nor that they will consent by undermining the foundation of a safe currency to endanger the beneficent character and purposes of their government. Yours very truly,

GROVER CLEVELAND.

TO THE NORTH POLE.

Canadian Expedition Will Try to Reach It By Sledges.

QUEBEC, April 15.—The honor of equipping and sending out the next polar expedition will probably belong to Canada.

At the approaching meeting of the Ontario Land Surveyor's association a report submitting the basis of such an expedition is expected from a special committee appointed for the purpose.

It is certain now that nothing but money will stand in the way of the early fitting out and dispatching of the proposed expedition, and this is not expected to be long wanting, as a large measure of government assistance is absolutely certain.

According to the contention of the association, the north pole is in Canadian territory and the men above all others best able to reach it are Canadian surveyors, accustomed to outdoor work in low temperature from lifelong training.

The committee having the matter in hand is an exceptionally strong one, the members being all famous in Canadian exploratory work.

Canadians do not believe in an open sea about the pole, and are planning to make the trip by sledges entirely.

WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

Saturn's Rings Are Made Up of Little Satellites in Motion.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 15.—Prof. James E. Keeler of the Allegheny Observatory, has made a wonderful astronomical discovery. It is a scientific and positive demonstration of the fact that the ring of Saturn is made up of many small bodies, and that the satellites of the inner edge of the ring move more rapidly than those of the outer edge.

From photographs taken at the observatory it has been found that the inner edge of the ring moves faster than the outer edge.

The motion of the different parts of the ring in miles per second can only be given after the photographs have been accurately measured under a microscope.

The professor will be able in a few days to give very accurately the rate of speed at which the different parts of the ring revolve.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

By local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure dearness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

AN INDIANA MIRACLE.

Mrs. Sims, Wife of Trustee Sims, of Lafayette, Ind., Crippled for 20 Years, Walked Without Her Crutches in Forty Minutes.

By the Use of Veno's Electric Fluid and Veno's Curative Syrup, the Coming Medicines of the World. $5,000 to Any Physician Who Will Make Them Better.

W. H. VENO, M. D.

Mrs. Job Sims, wife of Trustee Sims, of Lafayette, Ind., had suffered for twenty years from a desperate case of Rheumatism, for two years had walked on crutches, had spent over $1,500 on doctors to no avail. On the 17th of Feb. 1895, three bottles VENO'S ELECTRIC FLUID were applied to her limbs and in 40 minutes she walked without her crutches. She continued the use of VENO'S ELECTRIC FLUID for two weeks and took internally VENO'S CURATIVE SYRUP. In a few weeks she was entirely free from pain and able to walk about and visit her friends. This cure caused great excitement and is looked upon as a miracle; $1,860 worth of Veno's remedies were sold in Lafayette in two weeks. This is only a sample of the many extraordinary cures performed by Veno's remedies. They are sold by druggists as follows, with a guarantee to cure or refund the money:

VENO'S CURATIVE SYRUP, (50c a bottle,) is a positive cure for weak stomach, dyspepsia, constipation, liver, kidney, blood and urinary troubles, sleeplessness, poor appetite and general weakness, and when used with VENO'S ELECTRIC FLUID, will certainly cure the worst and most desperate forms of rheumatism, paralysis, spinal troubles, sciatica, neuralgia, stiff joints, weak muscles, numbness and and all aches and pains. Price 50 cents a bottle.

VENO'S LUNG TONIC, (50c a bottle,) is a specific for throat and lung trouble, asthma bronchitis, hoarseness, coughs, colds, etc.

For sale by all druggists. Guaranteed to cure or money refunded.

THE CHRONICLES OF MARTIN HEWITT

BY ARTHUR MORRISON

THE CASE OF THE MISSING HAND

[Copyright, 1895, by Bacheller, Johnson and Bacheller.]

CHAPTER V.

I suppose I may have somehow betrayed my amazement and horror to my companion's sharp eyes, for, suddenly, I felt his hand tightly grip my arm just above the elbow. I turned and found his face close by mine and his finger raised warningly. Then, I saw him produce his wrist-grip and make a motion with his palm towards his mouth, which I understood to be intended to remind me of the gag. We stepped forward.

The man turned his horrible cooking over and over above the crackling sticks, as though to smoke and dry it in every part. I saw Hewitt's hand reach out toward him, and in a flash we had pulled him back over his heels and I had driven the gag between his teeth as he opened his mouth. We seized his wrists in the cords at once, and I shall never forget the man's look of ghastly, frantic terror as he lay on the ground. When I knew more I understood the reason of this.

Hewitt took both wrist holds in one hand and drove the gag entirely into the man's mouth, so that he almost choked. A piece of sacking lay near the fire, and by Hewitt's request I dropped that awful hand from the wooden tongs upon it and rolled it up in a parcel—it was, no doubt, what the sacking had been brought for. Then we lifted the man to his feet and hurried him in the direction of the cart. The whole capture could not have occupied thirty seconds, and, as I stumbled over the rough field at the man's left elbow, I could only think of the thing as one thinks of a dream that one knows all the time is a dream.

But presently the man, who had been walking quietly, though gasping, sniffing and choking because of the tightly rolled handkerchief in his mouth—presently he made a sudden dive, thinking doubtless to get his wrists free by surprise. But Hewitt was alert, and gave his wrists a twist that made him roll his head with a dismal, stifled yell, and with the opening of his mouth, by some chance, the gag fell away. Immediately the man roared aloud for help.

"Quick," said Hewitt, "drag him along—they'll hear in the vans. Bring the hand!"

I seized the fallen handkerchief and crammed it over the man's mouth as well as I might, and together we made as much of a trot as we could, dragging the man between us, while Hewitt checked any reluctance on his part by a timely wrench of the wrist-holds. It was a hard two hundred and fifty yards to the lane, even for us—for the gypsy it must have been a bad minute and a half indeed. Once more as we went over the uneven ground he managed to get out a shout, and we thought we heard a distant reply from somewhere in the direction of the encampment. We pulled him over a stile in a tangle and dragged and pushed him through a small hedge gap in a heap. Here we were but twenty yards from the cart, and into that we flung him without wasting time or tenderness, to the intense consternation of the driver, who, I believe, very nearly set up a cry for help on his own account. Once in the cart, however, I seized the reins and the whip myself, and, leaving Hewitt to take care of the prisoner, put the turnout along toward Ratherby at as near two miles an hour as it could go. We made first for Mr. Hardwick's, but he, we found, was with my uncle, so we followed him. The arrest of the Fosters had been effected, we learned, not very long after we had left the wood, as they returned, by another route to Ranworth.

We brought our prisoner into the colonel's library, where he and Mr. Hardwick were sitting.

"I'm not quite sure what we can charge him with, unless it's anatomical robbery," Hewitt remarked, "but here's the criminal."

The man only looked down with a sulky, impenetrable countenance. Hewitt spoke to him once or twice, and at last he said, in a strange accent, something that sounded like "Kekin jinaway."

"Keck jin?" (not understand) asked Hewitt, in the loud clear tone one instinctively adopts in talking to a foreigner Keckeno jinny.

The man understood and shook his head, but not another word would he say or another question answer.

"He's a foreign gypsy," Hewitt explained, "just as I thought—a Wallachian, in fact. Theirs is an older and purer dialect than that of the English gypsies, and only some of the root words are alike. But I think we can make him explain to-morrow that the Fosters, at least, had nothing to do with, at any rate, cutting off Sneathy's hand. Here it is, I think," and he gingerly lifted the folds of sacking from the ghastly object as it lay on the table, and then covered it again.

"But what—what does it all mean?" Mr. Hardwick said, in bewildered astonishment. "Do you mean this man is an accomplice?"

"Not at all—the case was one of suicide, as I think you'll agree when I've explained. This man simply found the body hanging and stole the hand."

"But what in the world for?"

"For the Hand of Glory. Eh!" He turned to the gypsy and pointed to the hand on the table. "Yag-varst (fire hand) eh?"

There was a quick gleam of intelligence in the man's eye, but he said nothing. As for myself, I was more than astounded. Could it be possible that the old superstition of the Hand of Glory remained alive in a practical shape at this day?

"You know the superstition, of course," Hewitt said. "It did exist in this country in the last century, when there were plenty of dead men hanging at cross roads, and so on. On the continent, in some places, it has survived later. Among the Wallachian gypsies it has always been a great article of belief, and the superstition is even said to be active still. The belief is that the right hand of a dead man, cut off and dried over the smoke of certain wood and herbs, and then provided with wicks at each finger made of the dead man's hair, becomes, when lighted at each wick (the wicks are greased, of course,) a charm whereby a thief may walk without hindrance where he pleases in a strange house, push open all doors and take what he likes. Nobody can stop him, for everybody the Hand of Glory approaches is made helpless, and can neither move nor speak. You may remember there was some talk of thieves' candles in connection with the horrible series of Whitechapel murders not long ago. That is only one form of the cult of the Hand of Glory."

"Yes," my uncle said, "I remember reading so. There is a story about it in the 'Ingoldsby Legends,' too, I believe."

"There is—it is called 'The Hand of Glory,' in fact. You remember the spell: 'Open lock to the dead man's knock,' and so on. But I think you'd better have the constable up and get this man into safe quarters for the night. He should be searched, of course. I expect they will find on him the hair I noticed to have been cut from Sneathy's head."

The village constable arrived with his iron handcuffs in substitution for those of cord which had so sorely vexed the wrists of our prisoner, and marched him away to the little lockup on the green.

Bigelow Lecture Course.

The Temple Quartette, of Boston, one of the very best in this country, gave a charming concert last night in Pardee Hall. These gentlemen are not only possessors of good natural voices, but they have them most highly cultivated.—Easton (Pa.) Press, March 2, 1894.

The exceptionally fine efforts of the Quartette were encored repeatedly, as they merited. Their voices blended perfectly, and were individually excellent. It is doubtful if it has ever been better or more highly appreciated than at the present time.—Daily Standard (Biddeford, Me.,) Oct. 12, 1893.

HOME TALENT

Will Hold the Boards at the Opera House Tuesday Evening.

Presenting the Thrilling Irish Drama, "Shamrock and Rose"—Play to Be Well Staged and Presented in an Artistic Manner—The Best of the Season.

The Irish drama "Shamrock and Rose" which will be presented at the Grand Opera house Tuesday evening by an amateur company of which Roy McElhaney is the leading man, will undoubtedly be one of the best performances of its kind ever given here.

On several previous occasions Mr. McElhaney and his associates have appeared before the footlights, each time with increasing sucess and have acquired that ease of bearing and delivery, characteristic of experienced actors. They have given much time to the preparation of their present piece, and months of careful study has given each a thorough conception of his or her part. The play will be interspersed with several witty songs and harp solos by various members of the company.

"Shamrock and Rose," the play that will be presented is one of John Fitzgerald Murphy's best, and is descriptive of Irish life during the stormy times of the rebellion of '98. The French were then actively encouraging and aiding the Irish Revolutionary party, and when the rebellion began, numbers of Irish who were serving in French armies, crossed over to Ireland to fight for their country. Among those who returned from France was John Desmond, an outlawed patriot. Shortly after his return 'Squire Fitzgerald, magistrate of the County of Wicklow, is murdered by Captain Beck, commander of the English troops in the neighborhood, as the result of a quarrel. Beck is in love with the 'Squires daughter, Rose, a beautiful maiden who, however, has given her heart to Desmond. So in order to get rid of Desmond, whom he hates, Beck succeeds in fastening the murder on him, and causes his arrest. After a series of thrilling adventures, Desmond succeeds in escaping through the efforts of Barney O'Brady, a typical Irish patriot, who in order to accomplish his purpose, joins the despised British army and is actually placed guard over Desmond. After many ups and downs Beck and Desmond finally meet, and a proposition made to settle their difficulties with their swords. After some treacherous movements on Beck's part, he is accidentally shot by one of his own men, Shaun Carey. The secret of the murder then comes out. Beck is succeeded by Capt. Douglass, who is not a bad fellow, and between whom and Desmond's sister there is a pretty little love affair. The vigorous courtship of Illen O'Rourke by the effervescent Barney O'Grady is also one of the features of the play, and the quaint remarks of the Irishman cannot fail to excite roars of laughter.

Roy McElhaney will take the part of John Desmond; Al. Evans, Barney O'Brady; Will Puckett, 'Squire Fitzgerald: Henry Bassler, Shaun Carey: Wm. Black, Capt. Beck; W. K. Elliott, Lieut. Douglass; A. T. Clark, Thornton; Lulu Reinhard, Rose Fitzgerald; Lizzie Eckhart, Illen O'Rourke; Emma Miller, Nora Desmond.

During the evening the four popular songs "Shamrock and Rose," "My Irish Queen," "My Bonchalem Baum," and "Shan Von Voght" will be sung.

THE LAST OF THE SEASON

Fanny Rice and Company, the Last Booked Company to Appear at the Grand.

"When does the season close at the opera house," a TIMES scribe asked Manager Grimes this morning. "Our season practically closes next Thursday night, after the performance of Fanny Rice, but we will no doubt have something during the latter part of this month and during May; but as I said Fanny Rice closes our regular booking, and I am quite proud of our closing attraction and only wish the patrons of the Grand knew more about Fanny Rice and her company. If they did, I feel confident the old theatre would be crowded to the doors."

"Miss Rice and company must be something better than the average, from what you say—can the TIMES say so?"

"Yes indeed and you will not make a mistake, for we have had nothing at the Grand of the character here this season that will compare with it. In fact it will be a most fitting wind-up to a very successful season. Come out Thursday night and see for yourself. Good-day."

ARRESTED.

Murderer John Canaan Will Now Pay the Penalty of His Crime.

He Shot Down Joseph Gentil at Hanging Rock on the Evening of July 4, 1894, For Alleged Intimacy With His Wife—Has Been Working at Manchester.

John Canaan, who murdered Joe Gentil at Hanging Rock on the evening of July 4th last, was captured by Sheriff Ward of Ironton at Manchester, Adams county, Saturday morning. He was taken over to Peebles and brought to this city on the night C., P. & V. train and then taken to Ironton on the N. & W. train due here at 9:15.

While the party were at the C., P. & V. depot awaiting the N. & W. train which was to bear them to Ironton, a TIMES reporter had a few minutes conversation with the prisoner. Sheriff Ward seemed to have the fullest confidence in his man and did not handcuff him. In truth Canaan did not look much like a murderer. He is a man perhaps 45 or 46 years of age, rather undersized and stoop-shouldered. He will weigh probably 140 pounds.

Mr. Canaan seems to think he is justified in killing Gentil, although he refused to talk much about it. It will be remembered that the reason for the murder was the alleged intimacy between Gentil and Mrs. Canaan, this having been the cause of several ruptures between husband and wife. On the evening of July 4th, Canaan discovered Gentil communicating with his wife, and at once took him to task about it. After a wordy quarrel, Canaan drew his revolver, and shot the despoiler of his home twice, the last shot killing him almost instantly.

After the murder Canaan took to the hills back of Hanging Rock, and says he was secreted there for several days. He then made his way to Kentucky, and wandered around in that state several weeks. After working in Cincinnati, Salem and Kenton, he finally, about five months ago, landed at Manchester, O., where he has been working since in the Manchester Stove Foundry, under an assumed name. A few days ago, through some indiscreet confidences in a fellow workman, his identity was tipped off to the authorities and his arrest followed Saturday.

Canaan did not seem to take his arrest very much to heart. On the contrary he seemed to be rather glad of it. He said that he could now have the matter settled and there would be no more worry about being arrested. The constant fear of arrest was wearing him out, he said, and he intended to give himself up May first, anyway. While at the depot Canaan was greeted by a number of old friends.

John Canaan, the murderer, is well known in this city, having worked at the Ohio Stove foundry for years. He is an excellent workman, and was well liked.

THE EASTER SERVICES

The Fine Programs at All the Churches Enjoyed By Unusually Large Audiences Yesterday.

The Easter services at the various churches yesterday were elaborate and uniformly excellent. Nearly every church in the city held special services and the music was the leading feature in all. The churches were of course all decorated more or less elaborately with flowers and pretty floral designs and the work of preparation was rewarded in every case by big attendance. It is safe to say that more people attended church yesterday in Portsmouth than on any other Sunday for at least a year.

The musical programs were all published in full in Saturday's TIMES. They were rendered substantially as published and a detailed account would be a mere repetition. They were all of an unusually high standard, special care having evidently been taken in the preparation of each. The Easter offerings at the various churches were also very satisfactory.

Punctured His Tire.

Will Clayton went to Ironton yesterday on his bicycle, but on the return trip punctured his front tire near Hanging Rock, and as a result laid over till today. His wheel came up on the N. & W. this morning.

SUICIDE—NIT

The Notorious Bragg Woman Gets Drunk and Her Relatives Thought She Had Taken Morphine.

Saturday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock a messenger dashed into Coroner Davidson's office at the corner of Gay and Second streets, and informed that gentleman that his services were needed at the residence of Aaron Thomas, a Bucktown citizen living on Fourteenth street.

On the way out the messenger informed the coroner that Aaron's wife was dead, having swallowed a big dose of morphine. Of course Dr. Davidson got a hustle on himself hoping to save the woman. When he arrived at the house he found the woman lying on the floor surrounded by a group of sorrowing friends. She was foaming and frothing at the mouth and apparently in great agony.

A hasty examination satisfied the coroner that the woman was simply dead—drunk and he so informed the friends. This seemed to arouse the corpse for she sprang to her feet and seizing a flat iron made for Coroner Davidson with the intention of "cleaning him out." After some scienced dodging on the part of that gentleman he closed with the infuriated woman and wrested the iron from her. He then made his escape from the house.

Mrs. Thomas is a white woman better known as Mrs. Bragg and has a reputation in police court circles. She is married to Aaron Thomas a big darkey.

AT THE HOLY REDEEMER

Easter Day is Appropriately observed by the Congregation.

The Christian Feast of Easter was celebrated with most solemn pomp at the church of the Holy Redeemer. The beautiful church was a veritable transfiguration scene of holiness of plant and flower, burning tapers and brilliant electric light. The chancel was a perfect bower of floral beauty which was redolent with the perfume of many an Easter lily. Sixteen youthful altar clerks robed in lace surplice and red cassock made their first appearance in the sanctuary and were as charming in their grace of movement as beautiful in their sweet demeanor. The choir under the able management of Miss Belle Nourot, rendered Peter's Mass in artistic style. In fact they received a well deserved public compliment for their easter work. The offertory solo Bagidis "Laudamus Te" was sung by Miss Martha McGuirk in a most sweet and touching voice.

Rev. Father McGuirk sang the High Mass and delivered in an eloquent manner a beautiful discourse on "The Glories of the Risen Just." The generous congregation presented this good pastor a handsome Easter offering.

The evening service, consisting of the Rosary, Vespers and Benediction was a fitting close to the grand celebration. The church decorations never appeared more beautiful than they did last night under the effect of the electric lights. The music was especially fine. The pastor preached a powerful and eloquent sermon on the subject of "The Confessional."

The children's choir rendered most beautiful music at the morning service. Their sweet, fresh, young voices evoked the praise of every one who had the pleasure of hearing them.

The Men's Meeting.

The men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon was on a scale in keeping with the especial Easter services in the churches. The meeting was held in the gym. Features of the program were two selections by the orchestra, a solo by Prof. Cappa, special hymns and a talk by Secretary Lowman on "The Greatest Victory in the World."

JUDGMENTS

Given Against Filmore Musser Et Al. in Court Today.

Amanda Allen Sues Thos. H. Rickey and Others for a Colt and a Cow—Elizabeth Spencer, of Rarden, to Be Tried April 24th—Other Court Doings.

Common pleas court was in session but a short time this morning, only minor motions and routine business being disposed of. Elizabeth Spence, who was indicted at the January term of court for keeping a house of ill fame, was arraigned and pleaded not guilty. She was placed under $100 bond for appearance for trial April 24th. It will be remembered that she skipped out during the last term of court, returning about a month ago, since which time she has been confined in the county jail.

The motion to quash the indictment against Mike Friel was overruled.

Harry Miller was appointed to defend John McDermott, under indictment for assault with intent to rape.

In the civil docket some important entries were made, among them the following:

Padan Bros. & Co. vs. Filmore Musser et al.: finding for Cincinnati Type foundry for $87.94; finding for Padan Bros. & Co. for $221.10; finding for Sciotoville Star Fire Brick company for $129.20; finding for Barnhart Bros. & Spindler for $387.39; finding in favor of Louis J. Brehm against Musser & Strayer as principals, and the Tribune Publishing company as surety, for $101.36.

In the divorce suit of Mary E. Martin vs. Lorenzo Martin, the defendant who claimed that he did not know the trial was in progress, was given leave to file an answer upon payment of the costs up to date.

H. Leet & Company vs. Mary Secrist et al. Settled and costs paid. No record.

A. J. Hickman vs. James M. Corwin leave to withdraw amended answer.

A COW AND A COLT DUE.

Amanda C. Allen vs. Thomas H. Rickey, A. L. Hanes and Nora S. Rickey is the title of a suit to enforce a vendor's lien filed by Evans & Livingston this morning. The plaintiff last February sold 36 acres of land in Jefferson township to Rickey for $450. The amount was to be paid for by a mortgage on the property, two mules, a cow and a colt. The amount has been paid excepting the cow and the colt, and the plaintiff asks judgment for their value, $50.

COLONIAL TEA

To Be Given by Ladies of All Saints Chapel Next Thursday Evening, April 18th.

You are cordially invited to attend the "Colonial Tea," at All Saints chapel next Thursday evening. Remember to make no other engagement for that date. The members of the Junior Auxiliary, all the charming young ladies of that church, will receive you, serve you to delicious refreshments, and display many useful and fancy articles, which they will gladly sell you at reasonable prices. All are welcome.

Off for Europe.

Julius Arbogast left today on the B. & O. for Baltimore, from which city he will sail for Europe on the steamer Stuttgart, Wednesday. He goes to the mineral springs in Germany for his health. His trial, for selling liquor on Sunday, has been postponed until his return.

Billy Blew In.

Billy Heid blew in Sunday night from a several months' trip across the country. For some time past he has been in St. Louis. Billy usually goes via freight, consequently his traveling expenses are rather light.

If you have to borrow the price, don't miss Fanny Rice, as it is something extra nice.

It will be a rare treat to hear Bellstedt. But in addition to his wonderful playing you may tonight listen to the Czerwinski Trio, hear Miss McGuirk and Mr. Maddock sing and enjoy recitations by Miss Kline.
